Multi-systemic Therapy Treatment Program

- Multi-systemic Therapy (MST) is an intensive family and community based treatment that addresses the multiple determinants of serious antisocial behavior in juvenile offenders.
- The multi-systemic approach view individuals as being nested within a complex network of interconnected systems that encompass individual, family and extra familial (peer, school, neighborhood) factors.
- MST is provided using a home-based model of service delivery. This model helps to overcome barriers to service access, increases family retention in treatment, allows for the provision of intensive services (i.e. therapists have low caseloads), and enhances the maintenance of treatment gains. The usual duration of MST treatment is approximately four months.

Major Goals of MST

- To promote behavior change in the youth’s natural environment, using the strengths of each system (e.g., family, peers, school, neighborhood, indigenous support network) to facilitate change.
- To empower parents with the skills and resources needed to independently address the difficulties that arise in raising teenagers and to empower youth to cope with family, peer, school and neighborhood problems. Within a context of support and skill building, the therapist places developmentally appropriate demands on the adolescent and family for responsible behavior. Intervention strategies are integrated into a social ecological context and include strategic family therapy, structural family therapy, behavioral parent training, and cognitive behavior therapies.

Program Targets chronic, violent or substance abusing juvenile offenders at high risk of out-of-home placements and their families, youth ranging from 12 to 17 years of age and their families, and youth exhibiting at risk behaviors including initial acting out behaviors to conduct disorder, as well as alcohol/substance abuse.

Targeted Problem Behaviors

- Adolescent drug use
- Conduct problems at home and in school
- Aggressive and violent behavior
- Oppositional behavior, associating with antisocial peers
- Delinquency

Multi-systemic Therapy Treatment Principles

1. Finding the “Fit”
2. Positive & Strength Focused
3. Increasing Responsibility
4. Present-Focused, Action-Oriented, Well Defined
5. Targeting Sequences
6. Developmentally Appropriate
7. Continuous Effort
8. Evaluation and Accountability

When working with children, I utilize child centered play therapy techniques and adjust my approach depending on the child's development and needs. While adults are comfortable communicating verbally, children use the language of play to express the themes in their lives. Through play, children are able to communicate about issues that are troubling them and can learn ways to share feelings and thoughts. Parents or caretakers are asked to provide weekly input and to be part of the process. Over the last 25 years I have worked with adults, teens and children living through many difficult circumstances. I offer a safe and nurturing place to explore situations or problems that are causing you distress. Through therapy, you can connect with your inner strengths, identify your needs and priorities and take steps to greater peace and satisfaction. Many of my clients have been addressing depression, anxiety, life changes, unresolved issues of the past, relationships and trauma. Some people use therapy not to problem solve but to find ways to have more joy, greater well-being or to gain a clear direction towards the future.

Multisystemic Therapy Treatment Program

- Multisystemic Therapy (MST) is an intensive family and community based treatment that addresses the multiple determinants of serious antisocial behavior in juvenile offenders.
- The multisystemic approach view individuals as being nested within a complex network of interconnected systems that encompass individual, family and extra familial (peer, school, neighborhood) factors.
- MST is provided using a home-based model of service delivery. This model helps to overcome barriers to service access, increases family retention in treatment, allows for the provision of intensive services (i.e. therapists have low caseloads), and enhances the maintenance of treatment gains. The usual duration of MST treatment is approximately four months.

Major Goals of MST

- To promote behavior change in the youth’s natural environment, using the strengths of each system (e.g., family, peers, school, neighborhood, indigenous support network) to facilitate change.
- To empower parents with the skills and resources needed to independently address the difficulties that arise in raising teenagers and to empower youth to cope with family, peer, school and neighborhood problems. Within a context of support and skill building, the therapist places developmentally appropriate demands on the adolescent and family for responsible behavior. Intervention strategies are integrated into a social ecological context and include strategic family therapy, structural family therapy, behavioral parent training, and cognitive behavior therapies.

Program Targets chronic, violent or substance abusing juvenile offenders at high risk of out-of-home placements and their families, youth ranging from 12 to 17 years of age and their families, and youth exhibiting at risk behaviors including initial acting out behaviors to conduct disorder, as well as alcohol/substance abuse.

Targeted Problem Behaviors

- Adolescent drug use
- Conduct problems at home and in school
- Aggressive and violent behavior
- Oppositional behavior, associating with antisocial peers
- Delinquency

When working with children, I utilize child centered play therapy techniques and adjust my approach depending on the child's development and needs. While adults are comfortable communicating verbally, children use the language of play to express the themes in their lives. Through play, children are able to communicate about issues that are troubling them and can learn ways to share feelings and thoughts. Parents or caretakers are asked to provide weekly input and to be part of the process. Over the last 25 years I have worked with adults, teens and children living through many difficult circumstances. I offer a safe and nurturing place to explore situations or problems that are causing you distress. Through therapy, you can connect with your inner strengths, identify your needs and priorities and take steps to greater peace and satisfaction. Many of my clients have been addressing depression, anxiety, life changes, unresolved issues of the past, relationships and trauma. Some people use therapy not to problem solve but to find ways to have more joy, greater well-being or to gain a clear direction towards the future. Accepts: Capital Blue Cross, Highmark Blue Shield, Populytics, Geisinger, United Behavioral Health, Amerihealth Caritas, and Magellan.

OTHER HEAD START PROGRAM INFO

Otros programas de Head Start
Head Start is a Federal program that promotes the school readiness of children from birth to age five from low-income families by enhancing their cognitive, social, and emotional development. Head Start programs provide a learning environment that supports children's growth in many areas such as language, literacy, and social and emotional development. Head Start emphasizes the role of parents as their child's first and most important teacher. These programs help build relationships with families that support family well-being and many other important areas.

Many Head Start programs also provide Early Head Start, which serves infants, toddlers, and pregnant women and their families who have incomes below the Federal poverty level.
